

WEB BROWSER FOR UNREAL ENGINE DEVELOPERS

Brand Guidelines

What's inside.

UWebBrowser is a web browser built for Unreal Engine developers. This document defines how the brand looks, reads and behaves so every surface feels like one product.

Keep it disciplined. The system does the work; the accent stays rare.

The mark.

A globe with a live marker. It carries the whole idea of the product, the open web rendered right inside your engine viewport, in a single geometric glyph.

Primary lockup

Default. Use wherever space allows.

Mark

App icons, avatars, favicons, tight spaces.

Wordmark

When the mark already appears nearby.

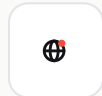

Built on a grid.

The mark is drawn on a 24-unit grid. Node radius, stroke weight and the globe curves are all derived from that unit. Never redraw it by hand.

Clear space equals the height of one node (1x) on every side. Keep this margin free of type, edges and other marks.

What not to do.

The mark only works when it stays exact. These six cover the mistakes that happen most.

One accent. Used rarely.

Signal is the only chromatic color in the system. It marks a single primary action, a live page load, a moment that matters. Everywhere else is Ink. If Signal is on screen twice, one of them is probably wrong.

SIGNAL / 500

rgb(242, 76, 58)

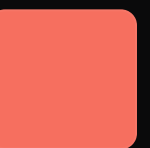

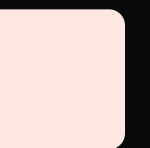

The palette.

A deep neutral ramp does almost all the work. Signal is reserved for emphasis. Tokens are named by role and step, not by appearance.

Proportion & contrast.

ROUGH PROPORTION ON ANY SURFACE

■ Ink ~70% ■ Neutral ~25% ■ Signal ~5%

Signal earns attention by being scarce. Treat 5% as a ceiling, not a target.

CONTRAST RULES

Signal/600 text on Paper

AA · 4.6

Signal/500 · large only

3.2 · not body

For text on light, drop to Signal/600 or darker. Reserve Signal/500 for fills, icons and large display.

Geist.

One family in two voices. Geist Sans carries everything people read; Geist Mono handles the technical register, labels, URLs, status codes, specs.

Hierarchy.

A tight scale with real intervals. Headings track in; body stays neutral; labels go mono and uppercase to signal the technical layer.

How it sounds.

UWebBrowser talks like a sharp teammate, not a manual. Confident, specific, never padded.

01

Direct

Say the thing. Lead with what happened or what to do.

03

Active

Buttons say what they do. The action keeps its name through the flow.

02

Plain

Name features by what people control, never by how they're built.

04

Lean

No filler, no corporate softening, no em dashes.

AVOID
